Playing today on day 16. I wanted to see if I could make the code better and make it smaller and see if I could use some custom functions to make it more compact and easier to read. And after a while, it just didn't work out. So I use comments instead to make it more readable. This one has a lot going on. And it looks like there's a lot of places where I could have used some other function to simplify the code. And so I spent some time after I got it all working, looking at the code to see if I could make it smaller. And the best I could do was drop two lines of code out
