So today I had a good morning of progress got a lot of good stuff added into my scene. I feel really good, I know exactly where I'm going, and I have a good picture of what I need to do to get there. So here's my to do list, it helps me keep on track with what I need to do. These are those mornings that feel really good when things are falling into place. And so now I can add as many sheep as I want. They roam around everywhere, they don't fall off the screen, and I can also have wolves and so there's so many neat things going on.
