

Transcript

So to get the new feature that I really have to have, I had to take out a feature that was cool, but not necessary to making things happen. You find that a lot. Sometimes you have conflicts that you have to just resolve by dropping something that you were working on. So you can see the fields a little different so we can't move around anymore. All the cheaper in place, but I now have a pause button. That works. Check it out.