We're looking towards bringing more engagement into our classroom. And we're trying to find ways to improve communication and teamwork within the four walls. And at the same time, we want to move past traditional tests and written essays. We live in a world of digital mobile technology, and we want to take advantage of that. At the same time, getting our learners to work together and collaborate and work as more as a team. When they do that, we'll find that they inspires them to take ownership of their own learning. Student podcasting can bring new potential to your classroom. It offers teamwork, collaboration, and ownership is just the beginning. Come visit me at stemtoolkit.weebly.com
